4th International Summer School
 German (and) Theology

25th June – 13th July 2018

JOHANNES GUTENBERG
UNIVERSITÄT MAINZ

International Summer School German (and) Theology

From Martin Luther to Friedrich Schleiermacher, from Dietrich Bonhoeffer to Rudolf Bultmann and Karl Barth, theology in German has been hugely influential in the Protestant tradition. The Protestant Faculty of Theology, University of Mainz, invites postgraduate students and young international scholars to attend a three week summer school in July 2018. The summer school is an opportunity for theologians (even with little previous knowledge of German) to immerse into language, thought, and the intellectual world of German theology.

The curriculum consists of three one-week modules and daily classes:

- Theological German language classes (daily throughout)
- Three German theology modules:
 - Week 1: German theologians from Luther to Barth
 - Week 2: German biblical scholarship
 - Week 3: The making of intercultural theology in Germany

It is the aim of the summer school that all participants will be able to read and understand important German theological source texts upon completion of their courses even if they have not had the chance to study German in depth before. International doctoral and postgraduate students will thus become familiar with the thought processes and dynamics of German theology which may prove to be immensely fruitful for anybody striving to pursue a career in theology or related fields.

In addition, there will be two excursions to places significant to German ecclesiastical history.

MAINZ

Academic theology has had an institutional place in the heart of Mainz for almost 1000 years. The theology faculty of the kurfürstliche Universität was established in 1477 and soon became one of the largest theology faculties in Europe. At that time the talmudic school had long been an important part of the rich intellectual world of the Jewish communities in Mainz, Worms and Speyer in the Middle Ages. Today, the University is named after the local inventor of the printing press Johannes Gutenberg. Over 100 theologians teach more than 1300 students in one of the largest schools for theological education in Germany.

The diverse cultural heritage of the region, the central location (only 20 minutes from the largest German airport Frankfurt), but also the attractive setting and Lebensart on the river Rhine has made Mainz a favorite destination.

Accommodation for the participants in the summer school will be provided by German host families or halls of residence in and near Mainz and is organized by the University's own Zentrum für Wissenschaftliche Weiterbildung.

TEACHING

The 2018 courses will be mainly taught by

- Professor Ulrich Volp (Ecclesiastical History and History of Doctrine)
- Professor Wolfgang Zwickel (Old Testament)
- Professor Ruben Zimmermann (New Testament)
- Professor Michael Roth (Systematic Theology)
- Professor Volker Küster (Intercultural Theology)
- Christina Ersch M.A. and other specialized language tutors from the department of Deutsch als Fremdsprache.

All participants are entitled to visit the regular lectures of the Faculty of Theology in order to gain an insight into the teaching at one of the leading theological schools in Germany. They will also have unlimited access to all the libraries and campus facilities.

All successful participants will be awarded a certificate from the Johannes Gutenberg University Mainz.
